Homecoming Dance First At Phy. Ed. Building

Tomorrow night after the game, UMD will pass a milestone in its development. For the first time the new athletic building will be used for a University function, the homecoming dance. In previous years, most of our big dances had to be held in places that were rented—the Spalding hotel ballroom, the Duluth Armory, the Hotel Duluth ballroom—but now, we have our own dance floor.

The Homecoming dance will begin immediately after the football game, and end at 1 a.m. All UMD students and all alumni are invited to come. Admission is by activity card.

Dick Beckman is the chairman for the dance, and John Sherman is in charge of publicity. They have hired Bill Kovero's band to provide music. Students will have a chance to indulge in the "bunny hop," the dance that was introduced to UMD by the originator himself, Ray Anthony, at last year's Junior Prom, and other novelty tunes as well as "straight" tunes. Jean Holmstrand and Dale Hagen are heads of the decorations committee. The theme is naturally football. Much work has to be done before Saturday night, and any volunteers that will work Saturday morning, are welcome.

Chemical Meeting Slated Tonight

Dr. Wallace D. Armstrong, Ph.D., M.D., professor and head of the department of physiological chemistry, medical school, University of Minnesota, will speak at 7:45 p.m. tonight in room 235, Science building. His topic will be "The Chemistry and Physiological Effects of Fluoridation."

A research chemist for the Texas Co. and former director of the UofM laboratory of dental research, Dr. Armstrong has worked in the laboratories of Professors A. Krogh and G. Hevesy of the University of Copenhagen and with Professor Robert Robinson, Lister Institute, London.

He is former president of the International Association for Dental Research (1945-46) and has also served as chairman of the Macy Conference of Metabolic Interrelations. He is a member of Alpha Omega Alpha, honorary medical fraternity; Phi Lambda Upsilon, honorary chemical fraternity; Sigma Xi, and the American Chemical society.

Cast Set in Satire Presentation of Guild

Dr. Harold L. Hayes, director of the University Theater, recently announced the entire cast for the fall quarter production, "Life of the Insects," a philosophical fantasy for satirizing the foibles of modern society.

Appearing in the prelude in the role of the vagrant and pedant are Douglas Rapp and Tom Johnson, respectively. The butterflies will be on stage during Act I, the marauders, consisting of a chrysalis, a parasite, crickets, beetles and flies, will be in the spotlight during Act II.

Act III will be dominated by the ants and the play will be conducted with an epilogue in which moths, snails, a wood-cutter and an ant appear.

Most of the students are cast in multiple roles. In addition to Rapp and Johnson, the cast includes Marilyn Abalon, Marilyn Eaton, Beverly Rowe, Kay Tree, Karen Peterson, Barbara Laibl, Marya Owston, Nancy Rasche, Don Sundquist, Ron LeMasurier, Bruce Halverson, Dave Wood, Gordon Brockway, Dennis LaRoque, Russell Tornio, William Griffith, Nickerson Bailey, and David Huntley.

The play will be held in the UMD auditorium.

Seven Acts Scheduled for Homecoming Variety Show

The Variety Show, under the direction of Dennis LaRoque, is on the Homecoming agenda tonight in the UMD auditorium, beginning at 8 p.m. According to LaRoque and Dick Gay, general chairman, seven acts will compete for the fifty dollar first prize.

Delwin Cahoon, Ralph Miller and Dale Hagen will do dramatic recitations of serious poetry to contrast with the normally light humor of the show.

Tom Johnson and Gene Gruba will be featured in a number of skits. Ludell Lindquist, a soprano, will vocalize while Don Sandin will do impersonations. Others taking part will be Gordon Brockway and Jean Holmstrand.

The coronation of the Homecoming Queen will take place tonight also. The six queen candidates are Nancy Abrahamson, Joan Kobe, Ione O'Donovan, Mary Peterson, Nancy Rasche and Beth Stewart. Grant Merritt and Dale Olson are co-chairmen of the queen contest.

Leading the Homecoming parade tomorrow will be the ROTC chairman.

color guard. In addition a number of floats have been entered along with several bands. Bob Iverson is the parade

Climaxing the week's activities will be the football game between St. Thomas and UMD tomorrow night at Public Schools stadium and the Homecoming dance immediately following.

Other chairmen are Dick Beckman and Jean Holmstrand, Homecoming dance; Dick Ojakangas and Bob Brabec, button sales; and Donna Cathcart and Arne Moilanen, publicity.

University Enrollment Continues to Grow

UMD's ascending enrollment yesterday reached its highest fall quarter mark since the days of the "Veterans bulge" in the years immediately after World War II.

Dr. Chester W. Wood, director of student personnel services, reported that 1,403 students were registered at the close of school Friday (Oct. 9).

Most promising feature of the enrollment was that it included one of the biggest freshman classes since UMD was established in 1947. The 559 freshmen now enrolled compare with 479 last year.

The fall quarter enrollment total is exceeded only by two veteran-swelled years since 1948—the record 1,936 enrollment in the fall quarter of 1949 and the 1,661 figure in fall, 1950.

By classes, the new fall quarter enrollment compares as follows with that of 1952:

	1952	1953
Freshman	479	559
Sophomore	285	321
Junior	238	236
Senior	172	175
Adult Special	139	109

UMD Student Officers Elected; Frosh Establish Record High

A total of 473 ballots were cast in the Student Council and Freshman class elections held last Friday. The freshmen vote was 242, or slightly more than 50 per cent of the total. The 473 votes represented approximately one-third of the entire student body.

Elected to the Student Council were Dick Beckman, Dick Gay, Tom Johnson and Dennis LaRoque, all of Duluth, and Jerry Cross, Marshall.

Virginia Lampson, Duluth, was elected Secretary of Correspondence; Peggy Woods, Duluth, Secretary of Records; and Mary Nichols, Duluth, Secretary of Finance.

The Freshman class officers for the ensuing year are Clyde Rogers, Duluth, president; Allen Nelson, Duluth, vice-president; and Anita Lee, Crookston, secretary-treasurer. Rogers will also be a member of the Student Council.

The first meeting of the Council was held last Tuesday in Washburn.

At this meeting Student Council president Gerald Cook named the new commissioners to head student activities for the coming year. The new Commissioner of Publicity is Dick Beckman; Dick Gay is the Student Welfare Commissioner; Tom Johnson, Commissioner of Convocations and Lectures; Dennis LaRoque, Commissioner of Athletics; and Jerry Cross, Commissioner of Social Activities.

Students Wake Up! Attend the Convo

Last week some 300 people attended the Kjordes Kittle Parker convocation. These 300 people were pleased with the oration and colored slides depicting life in Mrs. Parker's native Norway. Approximately one half of these, or 150, were adults. These people were attracted to the program by a small item in the Duluth daily papers.

The 150 remaining patrons of the convo were students from UMD, where convocations are much publicized. With UMD's enrollment over 1,400 students this year, more than 1,250 did not take advantage of this program that they have already paid for through their activity fees. Some of these people will not see any convocations in the entire coming year, and may well leave UMD in the spring without even knowing about the new plush seats in the auditorium.

For the first time at UMD, convocations have been placed in the lap of the students. Newly elected Tom Johnson heads the group with Dr. Tezla the faculty representative. These people are responsible for all the details of the speaker's stay at UMD. After the first of the year, students will have a voice in the selections of programs. As a reward for their work this committee wants no more than to know that it is appreciated. We can show them that it is and at the same time see some good entertainment by attending convocations.

LITTLE MAN ON CAMPUS

by Dick Bibler

"Well, anyone who takes 'Modern Dance' deserves a 'Charley-horse'."

The Case of The Careless Four; Or Numbers Game Proven Dangerous

WILL SWENEY

This is a series of incidences that, although they are not factual, could happen—and to you! There is a moral, of course, but read on anyway.

Torrance Hall: We take a peek into the smoking room just off of the main lounge, and there we discover little Gertrude Grotesque talking at the phone. Let us listen in . . . "Gee, Herman, I'd love to go to the dance with you, but I've already had to turn down forty other fellows; but I'll put you down for an appointment if you don't mind waiting a few weeks" . . . at the other end of the phone we can visualize poor Herman, her old high school flame, gasping for air. It seems that the only reason he was going with Gerty, was because no one else wanted to, therefore she was always a dependable date.

And then there was an ambitious young freshman named Horace G. Neus. He was bubbling over with optimism, for here he was at last, at the college of his dreams—UMD (each letter accentuated with a sigh of pure ecstasy). He was sitting in his room, studying diligently. He twitched with sheer joy at each sentence he read from the classic I THE JURY, which he was reading for his Retrogressive Reading course. The telephone burst into a violent ringing, and hacksawed his chain of thought. Hands shaking at this rude interruption, he picked up the receiver and heard a deep voice say: "Well, Horace, I hear that you have been drafted!" Talk to any psychologist about traumatic conditions brought about by extreme shock, and you will understand why Horace wanders around campus, looking like a lost puppy, mumbling to himself . . . "I am the jury. One lonely night . . ."

* * *

Poor Joe Athlete, his is another story of pathos and great suffering. Everything was going Joe's way—he was a senior; he had an honor point ratio of 2.9; he had a job that paid twenty thousand a year waiting for him on the day he graduated; and the girl he was engaged to was a combination of brains and beauty. He went away to school with high hopes and pleasant thoughts of the future. But tragedy was waiting for Joe . . . Monday: Lu did not call. "She must be sick," thought Joe, "otherwise she would have called." He did not sleep that night, and the next day he sat in his room waiting for the telephone to ring. This performance was repeated for a week, until he could stand it no longer. He called her. She was not at home (actually she was down at the morgue, searching for his mangled body, for he had not answered the phone when she called.) Joe took a drastic step. In a letter that we just got from him, he told us that the French Foreign Legion is not too bad, once you get used to it.

* * *

And finally, there was the sad case of Rose Inbloom. She had been at one time, a runner-up in the Miss Universe contest. She was used to having men stacked like cordwood around her, panting to do her favor. Then she came to UMD. For one solid month, she waited eagerly for the telephone to ring—and it didn't. Poor Rosie began having hallucinations: she saw men under her bed. Every night she dreamed that men chased her down the street, then stopped before they caught her. She was definitely frustrated. She is now seeing her psychiatrist.

* * *

What could have happened to these four people. Was it the fickle finger of fate? We don't think so, so we investigated. Here is what we discovered: each of these students had put the wrong telephone number in the address book, and all suffered miserably—except Gerty, because they did not bother to check the list on the second floor, to see if their numbers were correct. That, by the way, is the moral, and also the end.

NOTICE

Students are again requested to check their box number, name, address and telephone number on the bulletin board, second floor, center, Main building. Necessary corrections should be made as promptly as possible for the material will be sent to the printer within a short time.

Campus Yarns by Will Sweeney

Homecoming is naturally the big event of the week. Homecoming, a period of pigskins, princesses, parties, and potential ulcers (at least for last-minute float builders and chairmen.) It is really a curious sight to watch float committee chairmen tearing out their hair as they get up at four o'clock on Saturday morning to begin the construction of their masterpieces. It remains one of the unsolved mysteries of the university, how these floats are clapped together—and in time for the parade.

It should be a pretty good parade this year. I understand that a lot of floats and bands are participating, so there should be plenty of keen competition for the various prizes.

And the variety show tonight, under the competent direction of old troupier, Dennis LaRoque, should really be good. He has plenty of talent at his disposal, and the evening should provide everything from good music to hearty chuckles.

And who will the queen be? Your guess is as good as mine. It is almost impossible to predict, for all the gals running, are queens. Too bad all of them can't win. Let's come out and vote for the girl of our choice—it would be nice to have a queen chosen by the majority of the whole campus, rather than one chosen by a small minority!

We think that homecoming chairman, Dick Gay, parade chairman Bob Iverson, variety show MC Dennis LaRoque, and all of the many others who have contributed so much time and effort toward making homecoming a success, should be given a special vote of thanks. And let's turn out to the bonfire and see what the freshmen can do.

All this reminds me of a homecoming I attended at the "southern branch." It was quite a spectacle . . . fraternity row at night all lighted up by neon signs . . . dozens of ingenious displays in front of the houses, some large and glittering, some small and subtle . . . the homecoming variety show (tho obviously inferior to UMD standards) was really good . . . and the football game was terrific; the thousands of people jammed into Memorial Stadium . . . the sky darkened by the hundreds of balloons let loose simultaneously at the kickoff . . . the elaborate activities at halftime . . . the letdown of being beaten.

Tho our festivities cannot be quite so fabulous as those on our brother campus, for obvious reasons, they should really be equal as far as spirit and quality are concerned. But that is for you, the student, to decide.

And it should be a bang-up game—if what they did to St. John's is any indication. Four touchdowns in one quarter, and that ain't hay! See you there, and at the dance.

Famous American Still Life Artist's Works Shown Here

William Michael Harnett, America's foremost still life painter, affected straw hats and a handlebar moustache, but probably his most memorable feature was a pair of hypnotically piercing eyes. With those eyes, he saw detail that would escape ordinary perception. And in a sure, photographic style, he recorded the minutiae of still life assortments as few others have done.

In the Tweed Gallery at 2531 East Seventh street this month, one of Harnett's remarkable still lifes holds a special place as object of the month for October.

Entitled "American Exchange," the painting has been loaned to the UMD art facility by the Detroit Institute of Art, according to Curator Fred J. Triplett. It will be returned to the Detroit Institute about Nov. 1. Gallery hours are 1 to 5 p.m. daily except Mondays.

Born in Ireland in 1848, (Clonakilty, County Cork), Harnett was brought to America by his parents when one year old. There are fragmentary records of his living with his widowed mother in Philadelphia, where he began sketching and painting in 1874.

In 18 short years, Harnett not only established himself as America's premier still life artist but inaugurated a whole school of painting in which admiring colleagues and frank copyists simulated his style.

Harnett's painting shares Gallery attention this month with a selection of favorites from the Tweed Memorial collection, given by Mrs. George P. Tweed in memory of her husband.

Curator Triplett has chosen works by Max Schodl, John Constable, C. Francis Murphy, Jansen, William P. Ripp, Wyant Ferdinand Bol, Adriaan Key, Charles Jacques, Irving R. Wiles, Carroll Beckwith, Kenyon Cox, J. C. Cazin, H. W. Mesdag, J. C. Nicolief, G. Calves, Verbroekhoven, Edwin Austin Abbey, G. P. Gruppe, J. F. Millet and Peter Vanloo.

Among the Tweed pieces on exhibition is the charcoal drawing made by Millet for his painting "Blind Tobias" in the William Rockhill Nelson gallery in Kansas City.

"American Exchange" is one of Harnett's lesser known paintings, but its detail—a half-shown, blot-marked letter beginning, "I believe you have been waiting to hear from me for some time, but . . ." a leather-bound book with the lettering on the back, binding clearly shown, a tan inkwell, a yellow envelope, a gold coin—is characteristic.

Harnett studied at Cooper Union, the National Academy of Design and the Pennsylvania Academy of the Fine Arts, but art historians believe he was perhaps more profoundly influenced by two early 19th century Philadelphia artists, James and Raphaelle Peale, than through his formal art courses.

One writer commenting upon Harnett's attention to detail notes, "The textures of leather, wood, paper, fur, stone, porcelain and so on, are so remarkably achieved as to invite tactile as well as visual sampling. People say they touch these canvases because they can't believe the objects in them aren't real; actually, they touch because these forms cry out to be felt."

In his other paintings, such as "Materials for a Leisure Hour," (a stein, a smoking pipe, matches, a book, a newspaper and a quart of milk), and probably his most famous, "After the Hunt" (hat, musket, powder horn, walking stick, and game), reflects his obsession for minutest details.

Student Convocation Committee Set; Johnson Named Council Commissioner

The committee of convocations and lectures last week presented Mrs. Hjorids Kittel Parker, with her film lecture on Norway, as their first convocation.

The committee of convocations and lectures is the first committee to go to work under the new constitution of the student council. The new commissioner of convocations and lectures, elected last Friday, is Tom Johnson. Members of the committee are: Nancy Schroeder, general chairman; Gerald Cook, Dale Olsen, Bill Shimek, Dessie Popovich, Virginia Lampson, and Dick Gay.

The purpose of the committee is to improve convocations by making them student handled and student presented. Every convocation will be presided over by the commissioner of convocations and lectures, who will welcome the students and guests. Then a student, interested in the field of the lecturer, will introduce the speaker or talent.

The big project facing the committee now is the fall concert series opening November 24. The concerts will be evening programs starting at 8 p.m. Later on during the month, a drive will be held for seasonal tickets. Some of the best talent in the country will be represented during the series.

This talent consists of:

November 24—David Bar-Ilan, outstanding pianist, who made his debut at the age of eight. At ten, he toured Canada; and at present, he is one of the most talked about pianists in New York.

January 19—Robert McFerrin, a young baritone who has appeared in Broadway roles, won a Metropolitan audition on radio, and has done operatic work.

March 10—Gotham Players, an ensemble made up of a clarinetist, a pianist, and two string players. Each of the four people is a recognized soloist.

April 6—Chanticleers, a male quartet with each member being a recognized solo. They sing a variety of songs from Bach to Berlin.

This series of concerts warrants a large student turnout, as it is a cultural advancement for the University.

The new committee deserves the wholehearted response of the students in appreciation for the work and effort they are willing to put forth toward the growth and improvement of convocations and lectures.

Sororities, Frats Plan "Soc-Hop" Halloween Dance

The Inter Fraternity Sorority Council is planning a Halloween dance to be held after the UMD-Augsburg football game, Oct. 31. The all school dance will be called the "Soc-Hop." Dancing to the music of the Blue Notes will be from 10 until 1 in the gym of the Main building. Bernie Dinner is chairman.

Navy College Training Program Exam Scheduled

The Navy announced recently that the eighth nation-wide competitive examination for its College Training Program has been scheduled for Dec. 12, 1953, and will be open to high school seniors or graduates within the age requirements.

Successful candidates will start their Naval careers in colleges and universities across the country in 1954 with substantial financial assistance. Qualified graduates will be commissioned in the Regular Navy or Marine Corps and will enter the Fleet as junior officers with young officers from other colleges of the country and the United States Naval Academy.

The program is open to male citizens of the United States between the ages of 17 and 21.

Students finally selected, if accepted by the NROTC college or university of their choice, will be enrolled and appointed Midshipmen, USNR.

Students commissioned from this program are obligated to serve on active duty for three years.

Applications are available at high schools, colleges, and Navy Recruiting Stations.

Bulldogs Eye Second Victory In "Tromp the Tommies" Tilt

By JIM COUGHLIN

"Tromp the Tommies" will be the cry when UMD's Bulldogs play host to St. Thomas in the annual Homecoming tilt tomorrow night at Public Schools Stadium.

The last time these two rivals met was in 1951 when the Bulldogs' famous "Cinderella" team came out on top, 21-14.

Before UMD polished off St. John's last week the Tommies were solid favorites. Now the two clubs are rated about even with the Bulldogs a possible favorite at game time.

The Tommies come to town with a season's mark of two wins and two losses, winning their first two from Loras and Augsburg while losing to St. John's and Macalester.

Tommie coach Francis Deig will field a speedy, well-balanced outfit built around performers such as Francis Mach, All-State on defense last year, Charles (Red) Matthews, All-State tackle in 1951 who missed last season because of an injury, and Len Horyza, sensational passing quarterback from Superior Cathedral.

Expected to field only a mediocre team this fall the Bulldogs have become the new "Cinderella" of the MIAC. They opened by losing three close battles to Superior, Macalester and Concordia. But then followed with the slaughter of league leading St. John's.

MIAC STANDINGS

	W.	L.	Pct.
Macalester	3	0	1.000
St. John's	3	1	.750
Concordia	2	1	.667
Gustavus	2	1	.667
Hamline	1	1	.500
St. Thomas	1	2	.333
UMD	1	2	.333
Augsburg	0	2	.000
St. Mary's	0	3	.000

The Bulldogs are a young club with only four seniors on the first eleven. The rest are freshmen and sophomores with the exception of one junior.

It is not likely that guard Vince Mattei will be ready yet. He hurt his leg in the Superior clash and will probably be absent until after the open date Oct. 24. Wallie Aunan has a bad ankle but should be ready to go. The rest of the squad is in good physical condition.

Coach Peterson will start a backfield that boasts a top passer in captain Rollie Cloutier. Cloutier's passing blended with the running of backs Warner, Hussey and Aunan to give the Bulldogs one of the most dangerous attacks in the conference.

In the line the probable starters will be Beatty and Erholtz at ends, Krysiak and Brascugli at tackles, Carter and DeRocher at guards and Bymark at center.

"We took St. John's by surprise," coach Peterson told a Minneapolis reporter. "We're a young club with potential. We could be tough from here on in."

WAA Activities

The Women's Athletic Association opened this year's activities at Chester Bowl at which time the WAA Homecoming Queen candidate was chosen.

This year's annual Homecoming Alumnae Tea will be held in the new physical education building between 3 and 5 p.m. General chairman for the event is Janet Nelson.

Other activities of the quarter include soccer, field hockey, volleyball, fencing and badminton. These activities will be held every Wednesday and Thursday from 4 to 6 p.m. in the physical education building.

On Oct. 23 and 24 the Minnesota Athletic Federation for College Women will be held at UMD in co-operation with St. Scholastica.

WAA officers for the year are Carmen Kehtel, president; Janet Nelson, vice-president; Darlene Melander, secretary; Delores Herold, treasurer; Peggy Woods, publicity; Bea Brune, point recorder and general sports head; and Marilew Latto, Fall quarter sports head.

Sports On Parade

by Arne Moilanen

Amazing!

The Bulldogs looked like champions against the Johnnies last Saturday at Collegeville. Coach Lloyd Peterson beamed a broad smile as his charges proved to the conference that their close tussles with Macalester and Concordia were not flukes.

If the Bulldog's terrific showing against the Johnnies is any indication, UMD should be tough from here on in. In fact, the Maroon and Gold has a club which is better than the 1-3 record indicates.

The players and Coach Peterson feel that they could have been in first place if the breaks of the game had gone their way in the Macalester and Concordia tilts. That sentiment cannot be denied, of course, since the Bulldogs lost by such narrow margins.

Although a first place finish is out of the picture, the Bulldogs could wind up in at least a tie for second place in the MIAC if they win their remaining games.

The spirit on the club should be at a peak for the St. Thomas clash tomorrow. UMD has a young, hustling ball club which has done better than the pre-season expectations promised. Win, lose or draw against the Tommies, you can bet your bottom dollar that the team will give their all.

The Maroon and Gold beat the Johnnies without the services of first string guards, Vince Mattei and Earl DeRocher, both of whom were out with injuries. Earl made the trip to Collegeville but took ill from complications arising from a leg injury.

Joe Hussey, the club's most talkative gent, provided the punch line to the victory. Since the game was St. John's Homecoming, the student organizations had rigged up various shenanigans, one of which was the "old man," representing UMD, in the doghouse, with the "old lady," representing St. John's, ready to club the old boy on the head with a baseball bat if he tried to leave the house. Joe reversed the situation, giving the "old man" the bat, and having him bat the "old lady" on the noggin.

Another was the Bulldogs being ground up into hotdogs with twelve weiners representing the starting eleven and Coach Peterson, all of whom had been ground up and were on their way into the kettle. Guess UMD made mince meat of the Johnnies instead.

Don't miss the Homecoming tomorrow night against St. Thomas at Public Schools stadium. Game time, 8 p.m.

You'll be well dressed with a colorful school jacket. Prices start at $8.95

INTRODUCING THE BULLDOGS

Four Veterans Set for St. Thomas

When UMD's gridiron machine clashes with St. Thomas tomorrow night, there are four Maroon and Gold warriors fans should keep an eye on. Namely tackle Jim Krysiak, quarterback Rollie Cloutier, guard Earl DeRocher and end Owen Beatty.

JIM KRYSIAK

After a hitch in the Armed Forces Jim Krysiak decided to come to UMD and play football. UMD profited by Jim's choice. Today he is considered the steadiest performer on the Bulldog squad.

In the days of the two platoon Jim was an offensive end. When the limited substitution rule went into effect this fall he was switched to tackle.

Asked how he likes the change and what he thinks about the new rule, he said, "When you move to a position closer to the middle of the line the going naturally gets tougher. But I enjoy playing anywhere, especially on defense. I'm all for the rule change. The more football I play the more I enjoy it."

ROLLIE CLOUTIER

Rollie Cloutier needs no introduction. You all met him in this year's first edition of the STATESMAN.

Playing his first season as regular offensive quarterback Rollie is rapidly becoming one of the finest passing field generals in UMD gridiron history. His aerial accuracy didn't show itself until the Concordia game. When it did he set the Cobbers and St. John's back on their heels.

They tell a story about Rollie when he was a linebacker during the 1952 Concordia game. When the ball changed hands he was supposed to take Ron Casadont's place in the line-up. On this particular exchange Casadont came out, sat down on the bench and began talking with the player beside him. All of a sudden the two looked at each other in realization. The Bulldogs stopped the next play minus a linebacker.

EARL DEROCHE

Earl DeRocher, one of the reasons UMD has surprised everybody this year, is winding up his last season of college ball. He played two years at Brainerd JC before enrolling at UMD.

When this reporter interviewed Earl before the St. John's game he was the only one we had talked to so far who harbored any optimistic feeling regarding the Bulldogs' chances in their remaining games.

"We have a better team than most people think. If we get a few breaks we could give St. John's and St. Thomas a rough time."

Well, you know the outcome of the St. John's game. The Tommies are next.

OWEN BEATTY

Beatty, a product of Duluth Central, is back after a year's absence.

In his freshman year he broke into the starting lineup as an end and immediately became a favorite target for Howie Tucker's passes.

As a sophomore he rolled along smoothly until a shoulder separation in the St. John's game put him out of action the rest of the season.

This year his injury is completely healed and he is ready to give the Tommies some of the same headaches they received in 1951.
